

Monique Tate

Monique Tate is a devoted community activist and leader, instinctively following the Detroit Digital Justice Coalition (DDJC) objectives of initiating projects, weaving networks, building transformative education practices and community organizing to bring about digital justice in Detroit, MI.

She is currently engaged in designing and implementing a community governed wireless internet infrastructure in the Greater North End in Detroit.

Her passions are dedicated to uplifting community, inspiring youth and promoting education, especially digital literacy.