

Abdeldjalil Bachar Bong

Abdeldjalil Bachar Bong graduated from the University of South Brittany, having obtained a master's in information technology (IT) and a diploma of telecommunications engineering from the Higher School of Telecommunications (SupTelecom) in Morocco.

Since high school, Abdeldjalil has been volunteering in various NGOs and at various events focused on youth and the promotion of internet for achieving the sustainable development. Abdeldjalil is the founder and President Founder and CEO of HOUSE OF AFRICA, a panafrican civil society organization based in Chad aims to promote the development of ICT in Africa & the promotion of 17 goals of sustainable development goals of united nations & the promotion of agenda 2063 of African Union which offers development opportunities to young that allow them to positively change their life and their communities. From 2016-2018 he was one of two United Nations Youth Delegates from Chad.

ICANN 55 in Marrakech was his first ICANN Meeting, where he was an ICANN NextGen@ICANN and is very active in @AFRALO and @ALAC.

He is a founding member of the Internet Society of Chad (ISOC Chad) which campaigns for an Internet for all Chadians and is co-convener & the executive secretary of Internet Governance Forum in Chad (IGF CHAD), a national dialogue framework and a multi-stakeholder platform for issues related to Internet governance in Chad.

Abdeldjalil is Founder of Chadian School of Internet Governance (TdSIG).

Abdeldjalil is particularly interested in working on issues of migration, internet governance, youth capacity building, entrepreneurship, sustainable development, peace and human rights.